Soybean Facts

Today, 75 million acres of U.S. farmland is used for growing soybeans.

Soybeans contain all 8 amino acids, all of which are essential for human nutrition.

The soybean has been around for centuries. According to the Iowa State University Department of Agronomy, the first users and domesticators of the soybean were the Chinese in the 11th century.

Soybeans were first brought to the U.S. from China by Samuel Brown in 1765.

One acre of soybeans converts to 40,000 servings of Tofu or 2500 gallons of soy milk.

Soybeans are 38% protein and 18% oil.

Elevators in the Statue of Liberty are lubricated by soybean oil.
