GloTech Booster Pumps

SMW Sales is introducing a new booster pump. These new pumps are 3HP, 130GPM pumps designed by GloTech Corporation. The model number is P2303. GloTech is also working on a 5HP variant. The P2303 has numerous design improvements to reduce issues commonly seen with other brands of end gun booster pumps.

Design Benefits Include:

- Improved SS impeller for higher performance and corrosion resistance
- Upgraded, high performance tungsten carbide mechanical seal for maximum motor protection
- Reinforced volute design 100% dimensionally interchangeable w/ Berkeley
- Rotating assembly and parts fully interchangeable with most existing brands.

An Eerie Coincidence

The deaths of former U.S. Presidents Thomas Jefferson and John Adams on July 4, 1826—the day of the Jubilee—the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, was an extraordinary and eerie coincidence. Jefferson died shortly after noon at the age of 83 in Monticello, Virginia. Several hours later Adams died in Quincy, Massachusetts at the age of 90. Though the nation's second and third presidents were friends at the time of their deaths, they had been politically estranged for eleven years after the presidential election of 1800. Jefferson, along with James Madison, formed the Democratic-Republican Party while Adams was a Federalist. Adams wrote a letter to Jefferson on January 1, 1812, the first of many that renewed their friendship that lasted until their deaths. The last letter Jefferson wrote to Adams was on March 23. The last letter written by Adams to Jefferson was dated April 17, 1826.
